Program Highlight

Interoperability: Tracking Mechanisms Across the Energy Value Chain

With increasing scrutiny on supply chain emissions, EACs are emerging as an integral tool in providing a trustworthy and transparent account of a product's or process's energy attributes. The separate processes for Scope 1, 2, and 3 emission reporting are no longer considered in isolation. EACs are well-positioned to bridge the gap between elements of the supply chain, however, this will only be possible through the interoperability of tracking mechanisms. This session will examine how full-disclosure functioning EAC ecosystems can service all sectors and needs across the value chain.

WARNING - Phishing e-mails are active

Recently, we have received inquiries about certain organizations that have been reaching out to delegates claiming to represent the I-TRACK Foundation and the ISC2024 to get them to register their hotel accommodations through them.

Please know that we will not do that. The only hotel accommodations we recommend are the ISC2024 conference venue itself, The Grand Hyatt São Paulo, and the link they provided on the I-TRACK Foundation's ISC2024 Venue page and through the button 'Book your stay at the Grand Hyatt' above.

If you receive an e-mail from an organization claiming to represent us, please do not respond and delete the e-mail.
